PHILOSOPHER'S

Thaddeus Peck Compels Clergyman to Listen to Doctrines to Get Church Ground.

RATE IS $20 AN HOUR.

After First Instalment of $45 Worth Both Are Exhausted and Find It Necessary to Rest.

All mankind, unless multiplied by infinity, cannot make the thousandth part of an inch of heir on a monkey's tail.

-From the Philosophy of Thaddeus Peck.

STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 6 .- Twenty dollars an hour is the price Thaddeus Peck is paying Rev. Dr. Royal Raymond for listening to such philosophical arguments as he may advance. Peck talked $45 worth and both he and the minister were compelled to take a rest.

The Rev. Dr. Raymond believes that he is earning every cent paid him, and it is doubtful if he would undertake another such contract. He is the pastor of Stratford Methodist Episcopal Church, and in order to build an addition to his church wanted some land owned by Peck.

Peck would not sell for money, but said if Dr. Raymond was willing to listen for eleven hours to a few observations made by Mr. Peck and pay him $30 he would convey the desired land to the church. The cash payment is to provide a banquet.

Reasonably and Honestly.

Dr. Raymond, according to the legal phraseology of the agreement drawn up and signed, must "reasonably and honestly listen" to Mr. Peck's observatons on science and theology.

In his initial discourse Mr. Peck consumed $45 worth of time, and the second instalment is to be arranged at some future time, the minister having specifled that he was to be given sufficient time between discourses to recover.

Mr. Peck entered the room carrying a mond prepared for the ordeal. Mr. Peck entered into the contest trained to the "Religious Chaos to Theos."

"I will first caption my subject as ment shows the religious status of the present time. In other words, I will give what is a fact of nature expressed in the phraseology of the church. If we could have a Pentecostal revival based on nature it would be a good thing.

"We are infinitely surrounded by that knowledge of God that passeth all understanding. That is a fact of nature, couched in the theology of the church. This is an axiomatic truth of nature. Science don't explain it. It produces a fact, but gives no answer and leaves the result to themselves.

"When we cross the broad line of fact we meet the infinite in every direction. Loyalty to nature is obedience to God. Ignorance of nature is a crime against God.

No Realization of God.

"In reality we have scarcely any consciousness of what constitutes God or our relation to Him. I might speak of the Fatherhood of God and the motherhood of nature."

Mr. Peck talked along and was evidently well pleased at the listening qualities of Dr. Raymond. Both Mr. Peck and Dr. Raymond were quite exhausted when the evening's discourse was concluded.

His argument was frequently interspersed with poetical quotations. Peck had his subject well in hand, as he infrequently referred to his notes.

At the conclusion of the series Mr. Peck will give an elaborate dinner to Dr. Raymond and the trustees of the church with the cash payment of the pa church with the cash payment of 3 which is a part payment of the pur chase price.
